THE ANCESTRY
of the
NUSBAUM FAMILY

July 5, 1958

This genealogy was compiled from information taken from official village records of Lüterkofen, Switzerland by Mr. Jagge, village recorder, and from data assembled by Dr. Christian Nusbaum.

The final editing and printing was done by William Card Nusbaum and all additions, corrections, or other changes that may become apparent upon reading should be brought to the attention of Mr. Nusbaum as soon as possible at the following address.

Mr. Wm. C. Nusbaum
223 Orrich Lane
Kirkwood 22, Mo.

1820441

The rolling fields, scattered woods of maple and evergreen and the rich farm houses of the Lüterkofen valley looked very much like the countryside around Wooster. To the right are the dozen buildings which make the village of Lüterkofen.

This is the old Nusbaum farmhouse down in the village. It has probably changed little since it was built. There is a blacksmith shop on the ground floor.

Dear Family -

Once it became clear that a trip to Europe was possible during the summer of 1955, Aunt Sarah Nusbaum was contacted to determine whether it would be possible to visit Grandfather John Nusbaum's homestead in Switzerland.

She informed us that Grandfather was born in Lütorkofen of the Canton (state) of Solothurn in Switzerland. Joyce and I then made it a point to visit Lütorkofen early in June 1955. Lütorkofen is a picturesque little town of about two dozen buildings settled in a gentle valley. We approached the town through the woods of maple and evergreen and rolling and scattered fields not undifferent from the countryside around Columbus Grove. Our road up the shallow valley from the main highway forked in what was the center of the town. We knew not how to inquire about our Grandfather so finally knocked on the nearest door. After a little language difficulty we learned that the daughter of the local innkeeper had been to England and could assist us as interpreter. We proceeded up the left fork to the Inn and met Alice Furrer who was a very attractive girl and spoke English fluently. She took us to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jagge. Mr. Jagge is the retired village schoolteacher who meticulously records the births, marriages and deaths of the present residents of the village and also all descendents of the early land owning families including the Nussbaumers. The Jagge's home is a Swiss chalet on the outside but inside just like a modest American home. His flowers and garden are beautiful. Mr. Jagge reminded me much of my father in stature, coloring, hair, etc.

Mr. Jagge was pleased to hear the purpose of our visit and immediately explained that we were the first to give him any news concerning the travels of John and Christen Nussbaumer. He explained that all of the Nussbaumers had left L["]üterkofen. He then produced the genealogy of our family, carefully recorded, starting with Michael in 1689 up through John Nusbaum. He promised to send it to Dad on the proviso that we bring his records up to date with news of the Nussbaumers in the United States.

Miss Furrer proceeded to guide us through the village. Our first stop was at the old Nussbaumer house down in the village just off the left fork in the road. In the basement of this large stucco three story home was the old hearth where the Nussbaumers practiced the blacksmith trade - probably little different from when the structure was first built about 100 years ago.

We then went to the old Nussbaumer farmhouse up the right fork of the road on the side of a shallow hill. The house was one of many big, prosperous, well kept farmhouses in the valley. They were built so that the house and barn are attached with a hayloft on the second floor under a very steep wood shingled roof. There were several pieces of modern heavy farm equipment near the barn. The garden close to the house showed evidences of good care and fertile soil. We ended our visit and moved on toward Berne.

During the Fall of 1955 Douglas Foreman, Ruth's husband, had the pleasure of spending several days in L["]üterkofen visiting with the Jagge's while on a tour of duty in Geneva for our State Department.

With the promise made, Dad proceeded to gather information from all of you with regard to the Nusbaum family (8th generation). He had completed his work. It had only to be edited and printed. Now this has been done.

Mr. Christian Nusbaum, Professor
Cleveland Heights 18, Ohio

Dear sir:

It was for me a great surprise that your son William looked me up in order to set up an investigation of his ancestors and it pleased me to be able to obtain from our records the desired information. I have quite often endeavoured to make contacts with emigrants to America who in the 1850's left their native land. It was possible once with a group of Apostolic christians in Roanoke, Illinois.

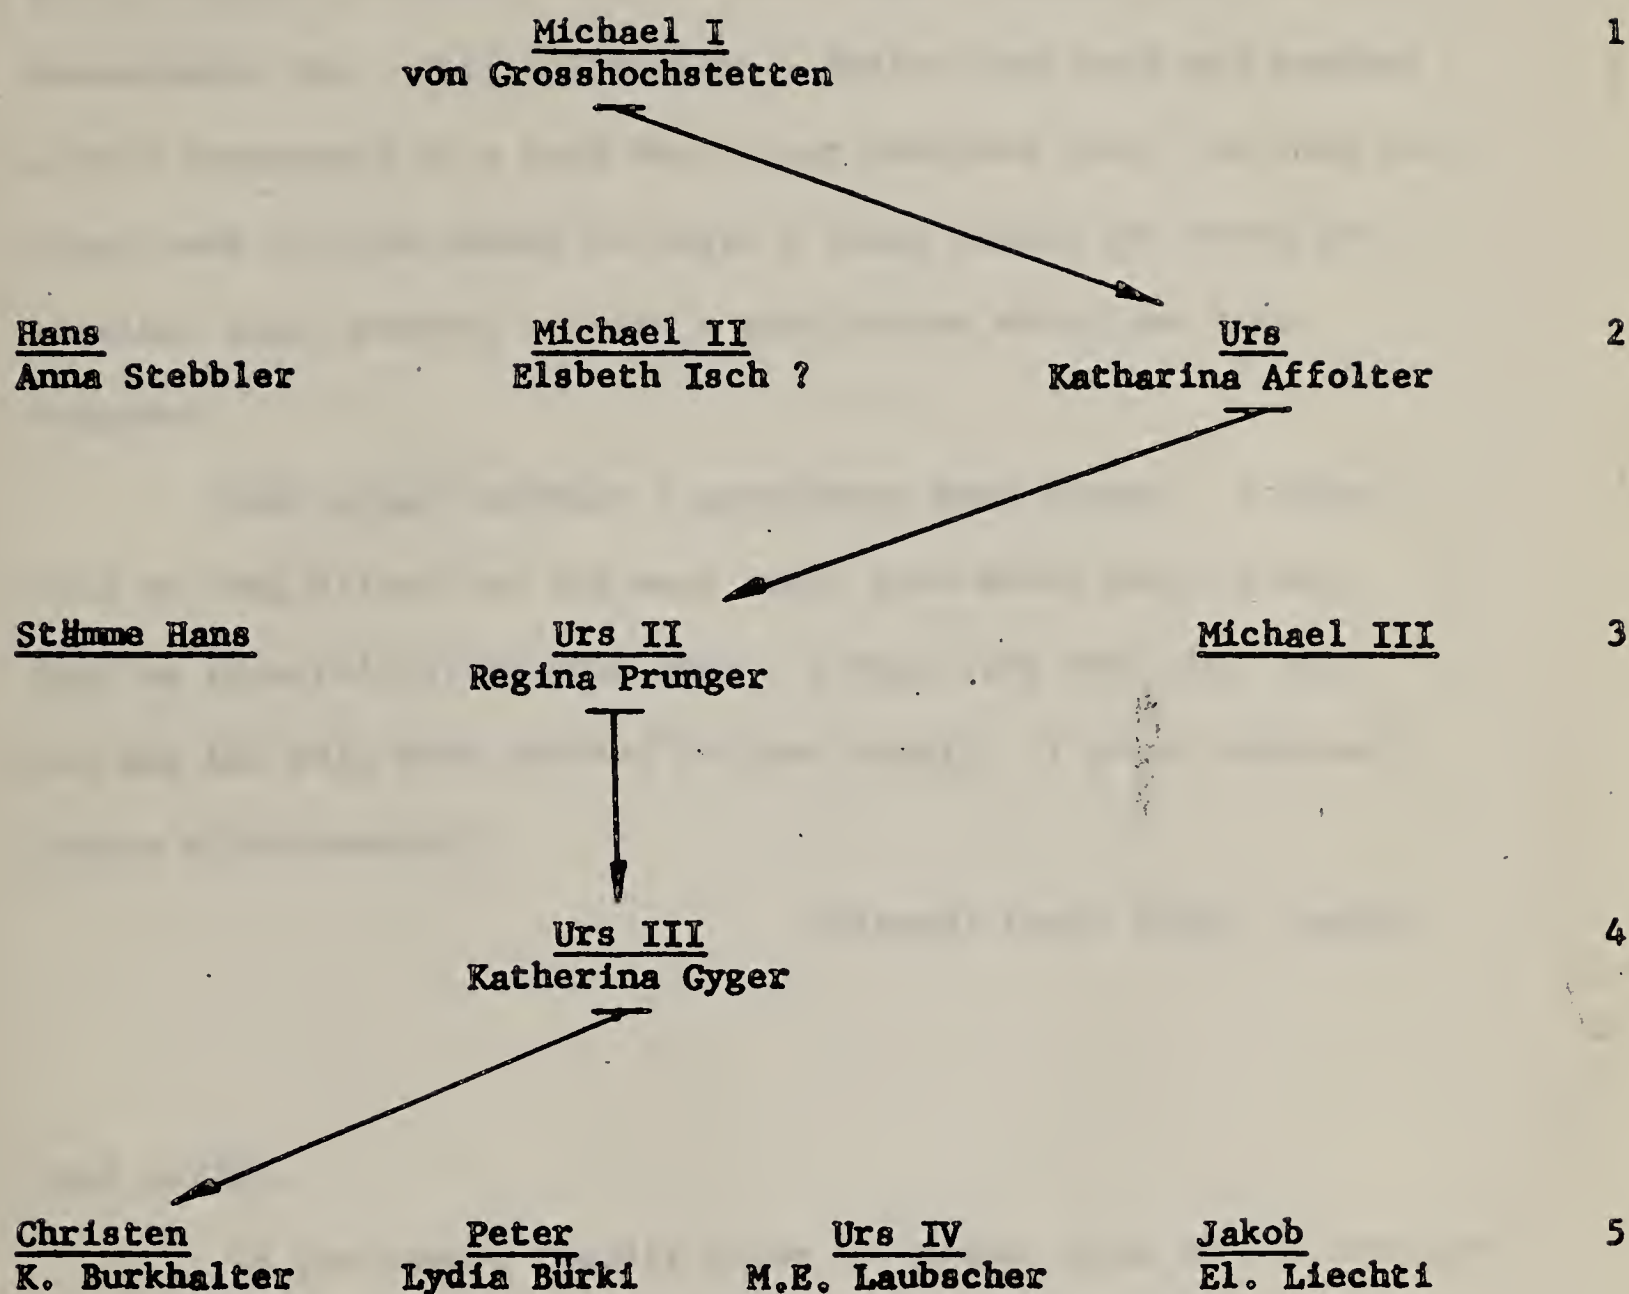

Now I will give you the information which I have found recently out of my own interest often with tiresome investigation in the Bernese State archives and old church records.

The family name Nusbaumer originated in the Canton Bern. They were Anabaptists who were persecuted by the Bernische officials in the year 1600 as they refused to take the oath of the ruling authority and held themselves outside the State church. On this account they were persecuted, fined very heavily, or thrown into prison.

It was necessary for them to emigrate; their brethren in belief in Holland accepted them and so many came to Pfalz (Rhineland) and later to America (Pennsylvania). Others settled in the present day Bern Jura where there are still several congregations; still others are in nearby France (Elsass).

Michael Nusbaumer was by business a blacksmith and received the citizenship of Luterkofen (1689) from whom descended our citizens of the name Nusbaumer, of whom none are left in this community; some families have died out; two families migrated to America of whom we knew nothing until your son William could establish his relationship to the family. Michael had three sons, Hans, Michael, and Urs from whom your branch of the family starts. Their offspring soon wandered further and chiefly settled in Bistum Basel as farmers in Munstertale, in Pèry, and La Heutte. Nearly all of whom remained here have carried on blacksmithing and on this account were known by the nick-name of "Schmieds". The offspring of the entire family is unusually large as they always have from 8 to 12 children. I know a few personally, as for a long time they have remained on the same estates.

I give you a survey of the family. It gives the following picture.

You will find on the following pages, which I send with the request, that you may relate to me as a return favor where your forebears settled, what has been their fortune, and who their descendants are. This information I desire very much and perhaps also a photograph of a farm where your brothers live. We have the idea, here in this county to begin a local museum for which you possibly could present me with a publication which you have composed.

With great interest I anticipate your answer. I blame only my long silence on the many small jobs which until today kept me from fulfilling your wish. I hope very much that your son and his wife have arrived at home safely. I greet them and theirs affectionately.

(Signed) Louis Jäggi, Teacher

Post script.

If you cannot readily write in German, then do not hesitate to write in English. Much to my regret I believed during my student days that Italian would be more useful. It was for this reason that I could not accept an invitation to the Worlds Fair in Chicago to which I was invited by an aunt. I made a carbon copy of my letter, merely refer to page number.
